

Loxahatchee River Watershed Status 2015-2016 El Niño

With lots of news about the strong El Niño this year, forecasters are predicting a cool and wet winter for our region. While the cooler temperatures seem to arrive later than usual, the precipitation in December was as predicted at nearly three times the historical average. At our meeting we will briefly discuss this years El Nino and some of the potential effects on the Loxahatchee River Watershed.

