

Something's Fishy!

Staff begin stocking tanks

Loxahatchee River District staff on the RiverKeeper spent a full day collecting specimens in the Loxahatchee River and Indian River Lagoon. to teach us about our treasured river.

Some of our prize catches were:
XXXXXXXXXX

Stop by the River Center and say hello to our new residents. We are thrilled to have them and cannot wait to share with you what they have

Featured Exhibit— Cypress Tree

A magnificent, seemingly real cypress tree in full glory greets visitors as they enter the exhibit rooms. Adorned with life-like wildlife, this “tree of knowledge” details the exhibits to come and provides an overview of the experience.

An interactive, touch screen monitor gives visitors the opportunity to learn about the Loxahatchee River habitats, how they are connected, the way that they have shaped our community, and why they are important to preserve.

It will also show visitors the exhibits that they will visit and what habitats they represent on the Loxahatchee River.

The tree “bark” was molded from an actual cypress tree on the Loxahatchee River.
